HCPS leads the way in energy efficiency

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Henry County Public Schools, in just one year after energy performance upgrades, has saved nearly $130,000 in utility costs and has been recognized as one of the most energy-efficient school districts in Kentucky.

A report issued under the Kentucky School Board Association's School Energy Manager's Project, designed to help schools save on utility costs, ranked Henry County as 11 out of 173 districts on energy conservation.

A chart ranking each district's Energy Utilization Index shows Henry scored 67.7 in 2010, but dropped to 45.4 in 2014, a 22.3-point improvement.

Superintendent Tim Abrams said this is the result of the performance contract with CMTA Energy Solution, which brought significant improvements in energy efficiency, such as installing geothermal heating and cooling at Eastern, New Castle, and the middle and high schools.

Geothermal heating and cooling, a system that takes advantage of temperature constants underground to save energy costs, also has the built-in advantages of bringing more fresh air into the facilities and having fewer maintenance issues, Abrams said.

Energy efficiency improvements have earned these four schools Energy Star classification, he said.

Abrams further hopes that upcoming renovations at Campbellsburg Elementary, particularly the addition of super-efficient LED fixtures, will help that school reach Energy Star certification, too.

Henry County schools also use an energy manager who works with all staff on energy savings ideas. Plus, the students get involved with energy teams, which propose ways to save energy at their schools, and this teaches them ways to

Lion's Club wraps up Christmas

Above, Santa waved at the children gathered at the annual New Castle Lions Club toy giveaway on Christmas Eve at New Castle Christian Church. Children chose several toys to take home, were given a goodie bag with fruit and candy, told the Christmas story and sat on Santa's lap to tell him what they wanted for Christmas.

Praise for Hopewell Baptist Church's 195 year anniversary

editor@hclocal.com

While Hopewell Baptist members faithfully sustain the church founded on Christmas Day in 1819, how the latest pastor took the pulpit sounds like divine intervention was involved, too.

Before he became pastor, Mike Frey got lost and just happened to find Hopewell on the way. Intrigued by the obviously historic place, he later felt called back to the church and offered to preach there.

Frey serves as the latest in a long line of preachers at Hopewell Baptist Church, where members celebrated its 195-year anniversary Dec. 28.

In 1819, Brother Allen McGuire and Brother Isaac Malin founded the church near Lacie, to bring a place of worship closer to members of the community in those horse-and-buggy days, according to Frey.

The church persevered through good times and bad, he said. In the early days, a preacher might receive a couple of hens for leading the worship, but that grew to $40 a year by the mid-1800s.

The current church building dates back to 1829 and still has the original pulpit and pews.

"It's amazing to see up in the attic where it's put together with beams and wooden pegs, kind of like an old barn would be constructed," Frey said. "It's really stood the test of time."

Unusual for the times before the Civil War, Hopewell offered blacks the opportunity to worship, according to Frey and Henry County, Kentucky, 1798-1995, issued by the Henry County Historical Society.

"In April 1843, the church agreed that Edmund, their colored brother in the ministry, should hold meetings for the black people in the community," the history by Juanita Batts said. "The meetings were to be the Sunday after the second Saturday in each month and were to be held in the church. Brother Edmund could baptize blacks received by the church according to their request."

Remember this? A look back at 2014

Wicked Weather

The Polar Vortex hit Henry County hard in January, leading to temps in the teens and wind chill readings averaging -4 degrees. The frigid temperatures led both school districts in the county to cancel school.

Reverend Passes

Rev. Dr. W.H. Goatley, Sr. passed away on Jan. 2, 2014. Rev. Goatley served as pastor of the Eminence First Baptist Church for 45 years, touching many lives in the community, but his reach extended outside of the county. Rev. Goatley was an advocate of civil rights, having heard Dr. Martin Luther King speak in person and even met President Bill Clinton in the 1990's.

Veteran Hall of Famer

Jerry McCandless, of Campbellsburg, was inducted into the new Kentucky Veteran's Hall of Fame. The honor marked the veteran's accomplishments following his military career, which included founding his own company and serving on the board of trustees for Lindsey Wilson College for more than 20 years.

HCPS Nurse Awarded

Melissa Jeffries, Henry County Public Schools nurse, was named the Kentucky School Nurse of the Year.

Couple Arraigned

A Spencer County couple was arrested and later arraigned on sex abuse charges stemming from the time the two lived in Eminence in 2012. Both Brett Smith, 36, and Laura Susanne Pike, 39, pleaded not guilty. After several court appearances, both were released from custody.

Knuckles named Big O Tires/ASE Auto Tech of the Year

editor@hclocal.com

Representatives of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence present the Big O Tires/ASE Automobile Technician of the Year to Ronald Knuckles, a Henry County native. Present are (from left) Glenn Dahl, Chairman of the ASE Board of Directors; Glen Nicholson, senior director, training; Knuckles; and ASE President and CEO Tim Zilke.

Ronald Knuckles, a Henry County native who's now the lead technician at Big O Tires in Louisville, recently received a national achievement award when he was named the Big O Tires/ASE Automobile Technician of the Year, according to a news release.

Knuckles was one of 47 automotive professionals who were recognized at the Fall Board of Governors meeting of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence held in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The ASE annual awards spotlight top scorers on the ASE Certification Tests from the ranks of more than 300,000 ASE-certified professionals nationwide.

"We are proud to partner with Big O Tires to recognize Ron's commitment to excellence in providing the very best in vehicle repair services to his extended community," ASE President and CEO Timothy Zilke said. "This dedication is reflected in the talented professionals we recognize each year and Ron represents the best of the best."

Knuckles has worked at the Big O Tires on Fegenbush Lane in Louisville for three years and has been an automotive technician for 27 years. "It was absolutely the biggest honor of my automotive career," Knuckles said. "It really just humbles you to be among your automotive peers."

Growing up in Henry County, Knuckles considered friend Steve Grigsby as an inspiration. Knuckles received an associate degree in auto diesel repair at Automotive Training Institute in Virginia Beach, Va.

"When I tried to figure out what I wanted to do with my life, I chose what I love the most," Knuckles said.

He thanked his parents for all their love and support.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence is an independent organization dedicated to improving the quality of automotive service and repair through voluntary testing and certification of automotive professionals, according to the news release.

be better energy stewards in their homes, too.

A high-tech control system means the schools can easily adjust when and how much the heating and cooling runs, Abrams noted. No longer do schools run their heating and cooling at the same settings all day. When out for a snow day, the heating can be turned down, for example. Similarly, there doesn't have to be as much cooling when school is out in summer.

"I'm excited," Abrams said, "because with us saving energy, I think it is ultimately helping the environment, but even more than that, every penny that we save on energy can go into supporting teaching and learning in the district.

"We're not seeing a lot of increases in school funding so we have to find ways to be more efficient in all that we do, and this is one place that we're seeing huge savings. And it's also nice to know that the work we've done ranks us that high in the state."

"They just cared for everybody at that time," Frey said. "That's kind of unusual because slaves weren't seen as anything but being property back then."

Many revivals at the church breathed life back into Hopewell over the years. According to Batts, the church closed until Brother R.K. Redwine led a revival at Hopewell in 1921.

Lack of a pastor might have closed Hopewell again in 2010, but then Frey came driving by. He remembered accidentally stumbling across the church when trying to find Wright Small Engine Service.

"I never had any other reason to go out there except to get my lawn mower fixed," Frey said. "I guess it was just God's way of making our paths cross."

That day, he and his son got out of the car to get a closer look at the church and then turned his car around in the parking lot.

Originally from Illinois, Frey didn't know anything about Hopewell, or even if they were still holding worship there. He couldn't get the church out of his mind, and he went back weeks later, on a Saturday, to slip a note in the door.

In the note, Frey offered to preach for the congregation, and church representatives called and asked him to come the next Sunday. Later, he learned Hopewell members nearly closed the doors for good. The plan had been to make that their last Sunday, because they couldn't find anybody to pastor the church.

A small but warm, friendly and open congregation greeted Frey and his family on their first visit. The church has been growing ever since.

To celebrate the 195-year anniversary, guest speaker Brother Lee Watts from Lexington delivered a message on the church's faithfulness.

While 4,000 churches close a year, Hopewell keeps going because of the faithfulness of its people, he told the congregation. "God worked it all out – we're still doing the Lord's work," Frey said about the church's anniversary. "God's been really good to our church."

Hopewell holds Sunday school starting at 10 a.m., followed by a service at 11 a.m., and an evening service at 6 p.m. Wednesday night prayer meeting begins at 7 p.m. All are welcome to attend. A former youth pastor, Frey also works with the youth one Friday evening a month.

Commitment to continued service in 2015

MELISSA blankenship
Publisher

In 2015, I resolve not to make any New Year's resolutions.

Admittedly, I don't have a great track record of keeping my resolutions. I still bite my nails. I do not exercise regularly and every once in a while, a bad word slips out – but usually only under duress.

So this year, I'm not making any resolutions for myself. I am, however, creating a list of things to do this year that will stand in as resolutions. Most importantly, they are very doable and will positively impact my well-being, either directly or indirectly, so I'm assuming it will count as a substitute for those failure-ridden, oft repeated goals I've set for myself in the past.

Professionally, it's very easy to set goals for the Henry County Local. This is a great time to recommit to our mission of providing our readers with a quality product that will positively impact our community's well-being.

Our goal at the Local is to inform and entertain while serving as a chronicle of the people, places and events that create the history of Henry County. That's been the goal of the newspaper since 1876.

We attend county, city and school board meetings on your behalf, pulling out the topics that we think would be of the most interest or most importance. We let you know about decisions that could impact you and your family.

We are also tasked with acting as a watchdog in this community. We will ask the tough questions to investigate issues in pursuit of truth as it relates to the public interest. We advocate transparency and don't take kindly to those who would try to mask their activities, for whatever reason, especially if it involves taxpayer money.

We commit to follow court cases and crime in Henry County, as well as accidents and fires. These are not easy stories to write and sometimes the details are unpleasant, but we can't shy away from the truth, it's the foundation of our content.

My favorite articles are those that introduce our readers to young people doing extraordinary things in their schools and communities, or to interesting people with special talents and abilities. Everybody has a story to tell, and we're happy to be able to share some of those stories with our readers.

We highlight our schools, businesses, civic and volunteer organizations and their activities. If good work is being done in the county, we want to help promote it.

We attend special events, take pictures of town festivals, participate in fundraisers and generally, have a lot of fun doing it. Due to our small staff size, we cannot be at every event, but we always welcome submitted photos and appreciate the assistance.

To close out 2014 and welcome in 2015, we'd like to thank the businesses that advertise with us and the loyal readers who continue their subscriptions or pick up the paper each week at one of our several retail locations. Without all of you, we wouldn't be able to continue to provide our services to the community.

We wish you all a very happy, healthy, fulfilling New Year!

Donation boosts club's activities

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

The New Castle Lions Club annual toy giveaway is made possible through money raised at Lions Club events like tractor pulls and the county fair, but also by donations. For the second year in a row, the Kentucky Road Runners Motorcycle Group from Frankfort has made a donation to the Lions Club to offer this program. Pictured are Lions Club members David Mahoney, Justin Atchison, Michael Douglas, Jakob Beckley and Nick Hawkins with Karen Phillips of the Kentucky Road Runners Motocycle Group presenting a check to the club. Karen also brought a donation of collectible Barbie dolls to the toy giveaway.

Signs show state is recovering from recession

Rick Rand
State Representative

Although there is no doubt that we still have a long way to go to recover fully from the national recession that began seven years ago, there have been some encouraging signs in recent days.

Early last week, for example, the U.S. Commerce Department reported that the economy grew by five percent between July and September, the fastest quarterly uptick in a decade.

A day earlier, meanwhile, the Gallup Poll said that 36 percent of Americans believe now is a good time to find what the poll calls a "quality job." That may seem low, but it is the best we have seen since November 2007, and is far above the eight percent rate the poll showed just two years ago.

Gallup added that there is more optimism among younger adults than those over 50, but there is little difference between those with and without a college degree, indicating new-job prospects are broad-based.

One area where Kentucky has outpaced most states is the decline in unemployment. November's seasonally adjusted rate of six percent was 2.1 points lower than it was a year earlier, making it the steepest drop we have seen in more than three decades. Only five states have had more success in this area over the past year, but one concern economists have is that part of our lower rate is due to people dropping out of the workforce, something we need to reverse.

The good news is that the decline in unemployment is not isolated in certain areas of the state. In fact, the unemployment rate was lower in all 120 counties in August, September and October when compared to the same three months in 2013, and we missed a statewide sweep by just one county in November. It is worth noting that this 120-county decline had never occurred prior to this summer.

According to a federal survey of business establishments that excludes agriculture and the self-employed, Kentucky has added nearly 39,000 jobs over the past year.

That includes almost 11,000 new jobs in the professional and business-services sector, companies that help other companies; 5,300 new jobs in healthcare; and 2,700 new jobs in manufacturing. The construction industry, unfortunately, is still facing tough times. Although it added nearly 1,000 jobs from October to November, its workforce is still below where it was a year ago.

In related unemployment news, Gov. Beshear announced in late November that our employers would not have to pay an additional $112 million tied to a nearly $1 billion federal loan Kentucky borrowed in 2009 to cover unemployment payments during the recession.

Under a legislative plan adopted in 2012, our businesses have whittled this loan down to less than $340 million, putting us well ahead of the scheduled pay-back.

Not all states have been as fortunate. Ohio, for one, still owes $1.38 billion, and its businesses will have to pay an extra $84 per employee in 2015.

Overall, 2014 has turned out to be one of the better years Kentucky's businesses have seen in a long time. In addition to the job gains, they're exporting nearly 10 percent more than last year's record $25 billion; new-business start-ups are out-pacing nearly every other state; and Site Selection magazine – a trade publication that monitors industrial growth – recently put Kentucky eighth in business climate.

As we approach 2015, the General Assembly will continue looking for ways to help our businesses build on these accomplishments while making sure they reach all areas of the state. We cannot afford to leave any region behind.

If you have any thoughts on how we can do this, please let me know. You can write to me at Room 366B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort KY 40601; or you can email me at Rick.Rand@lrc.ky.gov.

Henry County Extension – the volunteers

Agriculture and Natural Resources

Steve Moore
Henry County Extension Office

Over the past few weeks, I've been writing about the Henry County Cooperative Extension Service, with articles about the history, the agents and the secretaries.

Today I'd like to focus on the real workers who propel the Extension Service – the people who serve as leaders and volunteers. While we have decent records concerning the agents and the secretaries over the past 90 years, we cannot begin to capture accurately the thousands of Henry Countians who have served as 4-H Volunteer Leaders, Homemakers Leaders and Agriculture Leaders.

Through the years, there have been countless Extension programs in the community. 4-H projects and club meetings, homemakers lessons, agriculture demonstrations and field days and advisory and planning meetings have been ably accomplished by volunteers. A remarkable characteristic of all these people is the fact that they do these things not for personal compensation, but for the good of the young people and the communities in which they live.

To illustrate the point about this spirit of volunteerism, let me mention the Henry County Extension District Board. Over 50 years ago, in 1963, Henry County was one of the first counties to establish a District Board, with Charlie Yount, Valene Sweazy, Fred Thompson, Charles Beverly, Ples Mitchell and Thomas Wilson selected by the Extension Council and appointed by the county judge. The current Henry County Extension District Board includes William Burckle, John Emerson Smith, Ginger Coombs, Douglas Bates, Keith Jeffries and Mark Roberts.

Board members are nominated to serve by the Henry County Extension Advisory Council and appointed by the county judge-executive. The board members mentioned here, and all that served in between, have never voted to pay themselves anything, not even expenses, for their services.

Henry County Extension Volunteers are noted beyond the county lines. During two recent visits to Henry County, new UK College of Agriculture Dean Nancy Cox praised the leadership which Henry County provides at regional, state and even national levels, in groups such as the Cattleman's Association, the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative, the Kentucky Horse Council, the Forage Council, the Kentucky Dairy Development Council, Farm Bureau, the Community Farm Alliance, the Kentucky Corn and Soybean Councils and several 4-H and Homemaker committees and groups.

In one of the recent articles, I opined that Henry County was both a great training ground for extension agents and also a place where several agents have come and made this their home. While it is a beautiful rural county in a great location, I also believe that it is the people who make the most significant impact.

In my experience, and through my discussions with the other Henry County Extension Agents I've had the pleasure to meet and work with, the one common denominator about what makes Henry County a great place to live and work is the people.

You have welcomed us extension agents with open arms, allowed us to be part of your communities and your families, and worked with us on programs and services that make a difference in lives.

Our heartfelt thanks!

Caregiver's resolution: make time for yourself this year

A new year always brings its share of resolutions aimed to improve our health, body and mind.

As a caregiver, the most important resolution you can make is to take time for yourself. When you take care of yourself, you will be healthier, have more energy and enthusiasm to keep on caregiving and feel better about yourself overall.

Here are some tips on how to carve out some "me" time in the next year.

•Take an hour of each day to do things you enjoy like exercising, reading, spending time with loved ones, engaging in a hobby or doing nothing.

•Make your own health a priority. Exercise, eat a balanced diet, get enough sleep, balance stress and receive an annual medical checkup.

•Attend a caregiver support group.

•Adapt, as needed, the things you used to do with the person you are now caring for. Ideas include renting a movie instead of viewing a live theatrical performance, holding hands and listening to music instead of dancing and looking at photos if traveling is no longer possible.

•Be strong, smart and brave enough to ask for help.

•Tell your loved one how much they mean to you.

•Use respite services to take a break from the demands of caregiving.

•Find the joy in caregiving by relishing the small things like a hug, knowing smile or shared laugh with your loved one.

•Think about joining an Extension Homemaker Club or our Living Well Group for additional moral support.

Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

Ky Farm Bureau sets priorities for 2015 legislative session

With state road fund revenue expected to decline markedly in 2015, Kentucky Farm Bureau (KFB) is placing a priority on working with the General Assembly to ensure adequate funding is available to maintain rural roads.

KFB concluded its 95th annual meeting with its board of directors approving condensed lists of priority issues for 2015. The organization's delegates adopted policy positions at its business session on Friday.

Most of KFB's chief concerns are ongoing, including maintaining funding for the state's agricultural development initiative and opposing any attempt to freeze the state real property tax rate.

But those and other key issues for the farm group are not expected to surface in the upcoming 30-day "off-year" legislative session.

KFB, however, is highly concerned about the rural road fund because of a forecast of a more than $129 million reduction in revenues next year as a result of lower gas prices.

"The safe and timely transportation of our farm commodities is important to our farm economy and rural communities," said KFB President Mark Haney. "It is vital that the state has sufficient resources to maintain our roads and bridges."

KFB has a longstanding policy supporting the 22.2 percent allocation of state gasoline tax revenue for rural roads. The annual amount of road fund revenue generated by the state gas tax is determined by a variable rate, which currently is declining.

U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell also expressed concern about Kentucky's infrastructure during his keynote remarks at the closing business session. The forthcoming Senate Majority Leader noted how declining fuel tax revenues were impacting budgets for new or improved roads. He mentioned "a decaying infrastructure" among a lengthy list of issues that Congress needs to address.

Haney, a Pulaski County farmer who was re-elected to the president's position Saturday, said KFB wants to work with state lawmakers on a policy to bring more stability to the road fund revenues.

Among KFB's national "priority" issues is changing the guidelines under which farmers can combat the predation of livestock by black vultures. In recent months there have been widespread reports of the vultures killing calves and cows. The black vulture is protected under the federal Migratory Bird Act, meaning that farmers need to obtain special permits from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to kill the predators. Wildlife damage to crops and livestock, in fact, has surfaced in recent years as a big problem for Kentucky farmers.

Speaking at the recent KFB's Public Affairs Breakfast, Second District Congressman Brett Guthrie acknowledged the problem and vowed to help the organization resolve the problem through federal policy.

Kentucky Farm Bureau, with more than 465,000 member families statewide, is the state's largest general farm organization.

Nearly 1,900 members attended KFB's 95th annual meeting in Louisville, Dec. 3-6, to recognize this year's individual and organizational achievements and adopt policy for 2015.

State farmers benefitting from funds

Kentucky's annual agricultural output now stands at over $5.6 billion thanks in part to Kentucky's tobacco-funded Agricultural Development Fund, state lawmakers were told yesterday.

"Without the Agricultural Development Fund investments, I suspect we wouldn't be where we are today in agricultural output," Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy Executive Director Roger Thomas told the Tobacco Settlement Agreement Fund Oversight Committee.

The 14-year-old Agricultural Development Fund — created by the 2000 Kentucky General Assembly as a repository for the state's agriculture share of a multi-billion 1998 master tobacco settlement — has invested over $425 million in county, state and regional projects since 2001, according to the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy. The fund is overseen by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board, also established by lawmakers in 2000 to help the state diversify its heavily tobacco-reliant agricultural economy.

Rep. Wilson Stone, D-Scottsville, a farmer and co-chair of the oversight committee, said the fund has a role in "taking Kentucky from where it was in 2001 … to where we are now, and I think we should be appropriately proud of that."

Tobacco production was a $1 billion industry in Kentucky in 1998 with 118 of the state's 120 counties growing the plant, Thomas said. Today, tobacco "is still very, very important" in Kentucky, but its economic impact has lessened while the agricultural economy has grown.

"You look at the ag economy and how it's grown from 1998 to where it is now. No, the (Agricultural Development Fund) didn't have all that effect, but it certainly had a part of that effect," Thomas stated.

Committee Co-Chair and farmer Sen. Paul Hornback, R-Shelbyville, thanked the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy for its work with farmers including those in his district.

"They have the ability in the future to benefit a number of other farmers…and our changing world of food production," said Hornback.

A total of 17 agricultural diversification and rural development programs and projects totaling $1.73 million were approved for Agricultural Development Fund funding by the state Agricultural Development Board last month. Among them is an indoor farmers market planned for Henry County that will operate under oversight of the Pleasureville Economic Development Council LLC.

Sen. Dennis Parrett, D-Elizabethtown, said the Agricultural Development Fund has done a lot for farmers markets and farm produce across the state. "Look how many farmers markets we have," said Parrett. "The farmers markets across the state really probably wouldn't be where they are today without (the fund)," he said.

Agricultural development funds totaling $11,500 were approved for the Pleasureville project to help renovate a building for year-round use. Additionally, all products sold in the new market will be marketed as "Kentucky Proud" by the state Department of Agriculture, says the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy.

The connection of the Agricultural Development Fund to programs like Kentucky Proud shows how broadly the fund has impacted Kentucky agriculture over time, Thomas said.

"It has provided many, many opportunities for former tobacco farmers and current tobacco farmers to enter into other enterprises to sustain their farmers," he said.

AIR QUALITY PERMIT NOTICE

Draft Federally Enforceable/Conditional Major Operating Permit Renewal F-14-047
Eggers Industries
Plant ID: 21-103-00024- Agency Interest: 102603

Eggers Industries has applied to the Kentucky Division for Air Quality for renewal of their permit to operate a Hardwood Veneer and Plywood Manufacturing facility at 2125 Lake Jericho Rd. Suite # 1, Smithfield, KY 40068. The plant is classified as a Conditional Major source due to potential emissions of non-hazardous regulated air pollutants and hazardous air pollutants greater than a major source threshold. This permit contains practically enforceable limitations to restrict this source's potential emissions to less than a major source threshold.

An electronic copy of the draft permit should shortly become available at http://air.ky.gov/Pages/PublicNoticesandHearings.aspx. Official Copies of the draft permit and relevant supporting information are available for inspection by the public during normal business hours at the following locations:

Division for Air Quality, 200 Fair Oaks Lane, 1st Floor, Frankfort, KY 40601, Phone (502) 564-3999; Division for Air Quality Florence Regional Office, 8020 Veterans Memorial Drive, Suite 110, Florence, KY 41042, Phone (859) 525-4923; and the Henry County Public Library, 172 Eminence Terrace, Eminence, KY 40019-1146, Phone (502) 845-5682 .

For a period of 30 days the Division will accept comments on the draft permit and afford the opportunity for a public hearing. The first day of the 30 day period is the day after the publication of this notice. Comments and/or public hearing requests should be sent to Mr. James Morse at the above Frankfort address or e-mail James.Morse@ky.gov. Any person who requests a public hearing must state the issues to be raised at the hearing. If the Division finds that a hearing will contribute to the decision-making process by clarifying significant issues affecting the draft permit, a hearing will be announced. All relevant comments will be considered in issuing the final permit. Further information can be obtained by calling Mr. Sajjad Quabili at (502) 564-3999.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age or disability in employment or the provision of services and provides, upon request, reasonable accommodation including auxiliary aides and services necessary to afford individuals an equal opportunity to participate in all programs and activities. Opportunities for hunters

The stretch between Christmas and New Year's Day can be a time to relax, reflect and make resolutions for the year ahead.

The Wildlife Division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is well into its planning for the 2015-16 hunting seasons, and one word keeps coming up in the discussions – opportunity.

The focus is not limited to one species, but plans pertaining to deer, elk and small game stand out.

Here's a look at some of what's in store for 2015.

DEER

At its December meeting, the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommended several proposals for legislative approval that would expand or create new opportunities for deer and elk hunters.

In Kentucky, a county is assigned to one of four deer management zones. Some zones have move liberal harvest restrictions to thin or maintain the herd while others are more restrictive to help grow the herd.

Deer populations in Hopkins, Larue, Green, Nelson and Bullitt counties have reached the point where more antlerless deer need to be harvested, according to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife biologists. Under the proposal, those counties would shift from Zone 2 to Zone 1 status. The change would give hunters an opportunity to harvest an unlimited number of antlerless deer in those counties provided they have the appropriate number of Additional Deer Permits.

"You'll see a significant harvest increase going from a Zone 2 to a Zone 1, which is what we want," said Chris Garland, acting Wildlife Division director for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "When we go to a Zone 1, we're basically trying to knock back the population."

Deer numbers in Grayson, Ohio and Breckenridge counties have rebounded since the Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease outbreaks in 2007 and 2010 and can withstand moving from Zone 3 to Zone 2, biologists said. Zone 2 status allows for a 16-day modern gun deer season as opposed to a 10-day season in Zones 3 and 4.

There are other proposed changes to deer regulations on several Wildlife Management Areas to follow as well, including the creation of a new antlerless-only quota hunt in December on Veterans Memorial WMA in Scott County and a November firearms quota hunt on Kentucky River WMA in Owen and Henry counties. Also, residents 65 and older will be allowed to use crossbows during the entire deer archery season without being required to obtain a crossbow exemption permit under a proposal forwarded by the commission.

"We're really looking at providing as much opportunity as we can without negatively impacting the population base," Garland said.

ELK

A new Landowner Voucher Permit System could pave the way for private landowners to earn an elk permit by opening their land for elk hunting.

"We're trying to increase opportunity by opening up new lands and give people the motivation to open up their private land," Garland said. "We realize the elk are moving into the woods and moving off the public lands they've been hunted on. They're wiser and more wary and acting like a truly hunted elk herd."

Under the system recommended by the commission, a landowner or lessee with at least 100 acres in the elk zone would be eligible to enroll.

Landowners would set the number of hunters, by weapon type, allowed on their land. Two points would be awarded for the harvest of a bull elk and one for a cow elk. After accruing 20 points, the landowner or lessee of the property would receive one voucher elk permit, which would be transferrable and valid for either sex on any land the landowner or lessee owns or leases in the elk zone.

SMALL GAME

A progress report on the 10-year plan for restoring the northern bobwhite is due out in early 2015.

"We reviewed our progress over the first five years; what we did well and what we can improve on," said Ben Robinson, small game biologist with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

One of the highlights of the past five years' work is the success achieved in quail focus areas.

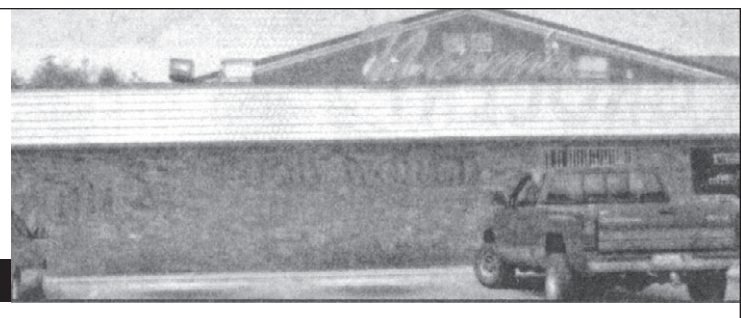

"Every focus area that we worked on experienced an increase in bobwhite populations," Robinson said. "The work differs a little bit for all the regions, but all in all they've been under pretty intensive habitat management. Everything from getting rid of cool season grasses like fescue and establishing native warm-season grasses down to managing existing habitat to make it better through controlled burning, herbicide applications and disking. It's really starting to pay off."

Opportunities abound for hunters in Kentucky, and more are on the horizon in 2015. The new license year starts March 1, and licenses and permits for the 2015-16 season are on sale now. Visit the department's website at fw.ky.gov for more information.

"We got burned in transition and on the perimeter," Nethery said. "Owen County is a solid team. They have a good inside-outside balance."

Nethery was happy with the play of two of his guards.

"Jake McKinley and Tervor had good shooting nights. I thought they played pretty well."

The Warriors fell to 2-6 with the loss while Owen County improved to 9-0.

"In the last four minutes of the fourth game in four days we looked stronger than we have at any time this year," Gilley said. "We hope this is a sign of us passing a mental hurdle because the last four minutes of the fourth game in four days was the most mentally tough we have been all year."

Adair said. "Lydsay played more aggressive on the offensive end than she has all year. Kenya gave a great effort at times on the defensive end. She is becoming a more consistent defensive player."

Adair took some positives away from the game.

"I thought our zone was good at certain points," he said. "Zone is something we are going to look to do more of this season."

The coach saw basic fundamentals the team needed to work on.

"We need to work a lot on our footwork," Adair said. "I think that is the cause of a lot of our turnovers as well as making lazy passes. I also think we need to do a better job at recognizing if we have numbers on a fast break. A lot times we just got in a hurry and tried to force things that weren't there."

Lyndsay Craigmyle and Madison Dockter led the Warriors with seven points each while Kenya Vargas added five points and Destany Crawford had four.

The Warriors fell to 2-5 with the loss while Lloyd improved to 7-4.

Lady Cats toughen up

Defeat Campbellsville in 4th game in 4 days

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Lady Cats faced a daunting task in their final game of the Food Pantry Holiday Classic. They would be playing their fourth game in four days and they would be facing the Campbellsville Lady Eagles, the hosts of the tournament, who had the luxury of sleeping in their own beds throughout the tournament.

To top that off, the Lady Cats had been taken to overtime in the first game of the four-game stretch against Owen County before leaving for the tournament and they were playing without a key member of their squad, Aleah Tuggle, who was home with the flu. Finally, Megan Payton, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, was still recovering from a bout with the flu.

"We were tired," Lady Cats coach Todd Gilley said. "We were playing the host school and we were without one of our players. We needed to win a tough game where we had to tough it out. We had to be physically and mentally tough to grind out a win."

The Lady Cats did just that in a closely contested game that saw the lead switch hands several times before the Lady Cats finally gained control in the fourth period and then hold on for a hard-fought eight-point win.

The Lady Cats trailed by three points at halftime before taking the lead late in the third period. They led going into the final period, 21-20.

Henry County quickly built the lead to seven points and then faced full court pressure throughout the final four minutes.

Rebels outrun Warriors, 88-63

Warrior Justin Mitchell twists toward the basket in EHS' 88-63 loss to Owen County Dec. 22

Teams combine for 19 3-pointers

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Eminence Warriors ran into a buzz saw when they hosted the Owen County Rebels Dec. 22. The Rebels were hitting on all cylinders with good ball movement and deadly accurate 3-point shooting. The Rebels played so well in the opening period that they didn't need the offensive services of their best player, Carson Williams, who is widely considered to be the best player in the 8th Region.

The Rebels went five for six from behind the 3-point line in the first period and got several easy baskets on run outs to lead 25-12 going into the second period.

"I thought we battled but we just didn't close out on open shooters very well and they made us pay," EHS coach Chris Nethery said.

The Warriors tried to be patient on offense and work for good shots but Williams was always around the rim to thwart drives to the basket.

In the second period Williams got in on the 3-point barrage with one from the baseline that made the score 27-14.

The Warriors continued to fight and Trevor Payton got hot from long range, making two 3-pointers late in the period to keep the Warriors from being blown out. After Owen County countered with another three-pointer to stretch the lead to 20 points at 44-24 with 1:10 left before halftime, they went on a 6-0 run to trail by 14 at the half. The Warriors scored 12 of the last 15 points in the half to gain some momentum going into the locker room.

Payton and DeMarcus Bailey hit two early long range bombs sandwiched around a couple of 2-point field goals by Owen County to cut the lead to 12 points to start the second half. That prompted a timeout by the Rebels. At 48-36, the Rebels went on a 13-2 run out of the timeout to build the lead to 22 points and pretty much end any hope for a Warrior comeback.

But Eminence continued to play hard and actually cut a 34-point fourth quarter lead to 25 by the game's end.

Owen County junior guard Chad McDonald led the 3-point attack for the Rebels with five for the game. He led all scorers with 20 points. Williams ended up with 19 for the game after being held scoreless in the opening period.

The Rebels hit 10 3-pointers in the game but the Warriors ended with 9 of their own as Payton led the way with 4 bombs and 14 total points.

Isiah Dixie and Jake McKinley had two 3-pointers and Bailey one.

The Rebels cooled down after their torrid start and ended up 10 for 20 behind the arc. The Warriors were 9 for 19 on 3-pointers.

The biggest difference in the game ended up being on fast break points the Rebels got on turnovers and quick outlet passes. The Rebels outscored the Warriors 20-8 in points off turnovers. Eminence had 18 turnovers to just seven

Erlanger Lloyd races past EHS girls

2nd period run ends Warriors' chances

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Eminence Warriors girls' basketball team hosted Lloyd Memorial Saturday afternoon and fell to the Lady Juggernauts 59-23.

The second period was decisive in the game after both teams struggled to put points on the board in the early going.

Lloyd struggled early against the Warriors' 1-2-2 zone defense while the Warriors couldn't find open looks against Lloyd's 1-3-1 zone defense.

Their 1-3-1 defense did gave us trouble," EHS coach Zach Adair said. "Our girls haven't played against it much. We did not look for the corners as much as we should have and I felt like when it went to the corner we didn't attack the way we should have."

With 2:35 left in the first period Lloyd had managed to eke out a 9-4 lead. One more basket by the Lady Juggernauts with 47 seconds left was all the scoring in the first period.

Lloyd came out more aggressive with their defense in the second period and created several turnovers that they converted into easy baskets on the other end. The Warriors only got off a few shots in the second period and Lloyd pulled out to a 30-6 halftime lead.

I thought the second quarter was a big key in the game," Adair said. "I thought we played decent in the first period but we came out in the second and were not ready to go and they went on a big run."

It was more of the same in the third period as Lloyd outscored the Warriors 16-5 to lead 46-11 going into the final period.

Lloyd switched to man-to-man defense in the final period and the young EHS squad looked more comfortable against it as they scored 12 points in the final period. Lloyd scored 13 points to set the final margin at 36 points.

"I thought Madison Dockter played well on the defensive end and on offense she did a good job of seeing the court against the zone,"

Cardiac Cats win at the buzzer, 55-54

Defeat Pikeville in another heartstopper

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Henry County Wildcats pulled out another thrilling victory in their final game of the Raceland Derby Classic on Dec. 22 against the Pikeville Panthers.

The Wildcats have made a habit of nail-biters this season. It was their seventh game in ten that went down to the final possession.

Henry County led the closely contested game from the outset but could never build a lead larger than six points throughout the game.

The Wildcats played without guard Coleton Aneszko who was out because of illness after battling through it in the first two games of the tournament. Jacob Buckley picked up the slack at point guard, as did sophomore Tyler Gray.

"Tyler and Jacob did a good job of filling the shoes of Coleton," Wildcat coach Enoch Welch said. "Brennen Peniston also helped fill the void in the backcourt."

The Wildcats got big games from three inside players. Gavin Jameson led the way with 17 points while Jackson Jeffries added 15 points and Trey Wills contributed 13.

Backup post player Mason Heightchew also scored six points.

The game came down to the final seconds when Pikeville had the ball trailing by two points.

With 2.7 seconds left Pikeville banked in a 3-point shot to take their first lead of the game.

Henry County called timeout immediately and faced the prospect of getting off a shot after going the length of the court in under three seconds.

Welch drew up a play to get the ball to Jeffries streaking down the sideline. Peniston, a former quarterback, was tasked with making the long inbounds pass. He hit Jeffries in stride and the forward went up for the shot when he saw Jameson break wide open under the goal. Jeffries fed the ball to Jameson who scored as the buzzer sounded to give the Wildcats their sixth victory in 10 games this season.

"We played really well," Welch said. "Pikeville was a talented team that went 13-deep. We played with a lot of poise and patience in this one. They threw a lot of different looks at us and we handled it all pretty well."
